The programme aimed to update participants on standard infection control measures, prevention of hospital-acquired infections, and the importance of maintaining patient and healthcare worker safety. The session emphasized evidence-based nursing practices and adherence to national and international infection control guidelines.

The resource person delivered an informative lecture covering topics such as hand hygiene, use of personal protective equipment (PPE), biomedical waste management, sterilization and disinfection, and prevention of cross-infection. The session also highlighted the nurse's role in maintaining asepsis in clinical settings.

Active participation was observed through interactive discussions and question-answer sessions, which helped clarify practical aspects of infection control in day-to-day nursing practice. The programme was beneficial in strengthening clinical competence and awareness among participants.

The CPD programme concluded with a vote of thanks, acknowledging the efforts of the management, organizing committee, resource person, and participants. Overall, the programme was informative, effective, and contributed to professional development in nursing practice.
